ApHC BOARD REDUCES LATE FEES FOR WORLD SHOW

MOSCOW, IDAHO — By an unanimous vote, the ApHC Board of Directors voted to significantly reduce late entry fees for the upcoming World Championship and Youth World Championship Appaloosa Shows in Fort Worth, Texas. The show will run from October 29 – November 8.

There will be a flat $25 late fee for both open and non-pro classes, while all late fees for youth classes are being waived. This represents a significant savings from the already-discounted late fees of $60 (open), $50 (non-pro) and $35 (youth).

“Because of COVID-19, this has been a very difficult year for many of our members,” said ApHC President Ken Johnson. “But by taking this action, we believe it will be a win-win for everyone. We’re also hopeful that even more of our members will now be able to attend.”

Johnson added that early entries, which closed last week, were especially strong.

“From all indications, both the number of horses and participants will surpass last year’s show,” Johnson continued. “I want to assure everyone that we are taking every possible precaution to protect the health and safety of everyone in attendance. We’re looking forward to hosting a terrific show.”

The Appaloosa Horse Club (ApHC) was established in 1938 with a mission of preserving, promoting and enhancing the Appaloosa breed. The ApHC has since registered more than 700,000 Appaloosas, which are known for their distinctive color, intelligence and even temperament. True to their reputation as an extremely versatile breed, Appaloosas can be found in nearly every discipline including racing, endurance riding and serving as reliable family horses. The international breed registry is headquartered in Moscow, Idaho, the heart of the Palouse region—the Appaloosa breed’s namesake and point of origin.
